DOCTRINE OF DISCOVERY

There was a cataclysmic change in the rights of Indigenous Peoples when the Crown assumed sovereignty in Canada. Sovereign rights of Indigenous Peoples were usurped and replaced by Crown rights. This was done through the Doctrine of Discovery and the doctrine of Terra Nullius. Terra Nullius finds its legal root in 18th century European law, but the concept was used to justify the right to colonize Indigenous lands throughout the 16th to 20th centuries.
